MESSRS, BELVIN AND BOOZE.

An Anonymous Letter Crops Out-Testimony of Witnesses.

The Council committee on investigation continued its labors last night. The largest number of spectators that has yet attended the meetings of the body occu-pied the Council chamber. Of the committee on hand there were Chairman Manu and Mesers. Allen, Gunn, Guigon, Reeve, Vaughan, Murphy, and White. A tele-gram from Mr. Preston Belvin, stating that it was impossible for him to get here in time to attend the meeting, was read. in time to attend the meeting, was read.

Mr. Gienn was called to the stand and resumed his testimony. He said he considered that the trip to New York was simply for the purpose of looking at the various kinds of furniture used in different buildings, and "that all the effort that was made on my part was to do for the committee all that I could do for them, and thus induce them to adopt that style of furniture best suited to the new City-Hall building."

furniture best smited to the new City-Hall building."

By Mr. Meredith: Did you show the committee any attention in the city of Richmond as well as on that trip?

Mr. Glena: I do not think I showed any more attention to the committee in the city of Richmond than I would have shown any friend on the street.

Mr. Meredith: To what extent did you show them attention?

Mr. Glena: I was one day in company with probably half a dozen people, possible two of whom were members of the committee. We had taken a drink together, and it was proposed to go to the theatre that night, each man to buy his own ticket. I did not pay for any one, but bought my own ticket.

Mr. Starke while on the stand presented the following letter from Mr. Booze:

"In reference to the request of the committee for my presence, would say to you that I am certainly unable to meet them at the meeting suggested by you, and with the business before me at this time could not see my way clear to reach your city inside of two weeks.

"I shall cheerfully appear before the committee will still in continuous session until all the testimony is gone through with that I may propose to present to the committee.

Mr. Glenn: No, sir, hereit as the men.

Mr. Moredith: I can't draw that distinction. Do you mean as a man?

Mr. Glenn: Yes, sir.

Mr. Glenn then entered into a statement about entertaining the committee in New York, and after contradicting Mr. Belvin's statement as to the proprietor of the St. James Hotel offering a box at the theatre to the committee, stated that he authorized the proprietor to procure the box for the use of the committee and paid for it himself. WHAT IT COST MR. WADDET.

Mr. Waddey was then recalled and fur-nished an itemized statement of the money ie had paid out in connection with this contract business. His statement con-ained these items:

Total. $199 10

When asked by Mr. Meredith what $25

Mr. Epps: If you, Mr. Meredith is a proper question I will answer it. I do not want to do any injustice to Mr. Waddey: Yes sir.

Mr. Meredith: Now you have got the contract you have to pay all the expense.

Mr. Waddey: Yes, it comes out of my profits off the transaction.

Mr. Meredith: Did they not require an itemized account to be kept, as they had bee half to pay?

Mr. Waddey: They did not.

Mr. Meredith: Will they take it in a more sum ike this?

Mr. Waddey: Yes, sir. They are willing o do so, as we buy from $500 to $1.000 a nonth of them. I think they would take by statement.

Mr. Waddey: Mr. Waddey: Mr. Curtis, the witness thought, was impressed with the $2 min to graph to go and the same from the same train, stopped at the same hotels, had the same fare, but left the committee at Philadelphia and came over to Baltimore. Mr. Waddev then explained his business relations with Mr. Mountcastle in regard to moving his factory. This contract was made during the last week in December of the first week in January. The bill amounted to $2020, on which there was a credit of $204 ns the committee had previously been advised, or rather $54. The bill was objected to by Mr. Waddey, who paid the sum of $231 m settlement.

Mr. Meredith: What is the date of that credit of $34 on that bill?

The Chair: There is no date to it.

Mr. Waddey: The bill was rendered February 25th and called for thirty-six days' work at $3 a day.

THE DIFFICULTY WITH MR. BOOZE.

Mr. Guigon questioned Mr. Waddey as to an elleged difficulty in his store with Mr. Booze. Mr. Waddey did not think this had any bearing upon the examination. He finally said Mr. Booze sand that he (Waddey) had acted a "damn nigger" at Roanoke and he struck him.

Mr. Guigon asked Mr. Waddey if Mr. Booze came to see him for the purpose or intimated a purpose or desire to enter a combination with him for this work. The witness replied that Mr. Booze had intimated that he would like to make such an arrangement. He was asked if he remembered the conversation which took place.

Mr. Waddey did not deem it proper for him to give a statement as to that altercation.

Mr. Guigon: You know that Mr. Starke, the representative of Mr. Booze, is in the city, do you not?

" HAD THAT COMMITTER FIXED."

Mr. Epps explained how he came to borrow the money from Mr. Glenn first. He said: This young man Glenn came to me and said: "If it is inconvenient for you to get the money I will advance it to you." I learned in a few days that he had offered to lend it to every member of the committee.

germane."
"What proposition did Mr. Booze make?" was the next question.
"He made none."
"What did you make?"
"I made none." Mr. Guigon remarked that he understood Mr. Starke desired to make an additional statement, and on his motion that gentleman was allowed to speak. Mr. Starke said that he had learned that Mr. Belvin had testified that he went North with the sub-committee as the representative of himself, and that he (Starke) was to bear a certain part of the expenses of his trip. Mr. Starke denied that this was a fact or that he had ever paid any portion of the costs of that trip. The witness said that so far as he knew Mr. Belvin had no connection with the Fenton company except as far as permission to put in a duplicate bid of his own was concerned. He thought Mr. Beoze and Mr. Belvin had arranged this between themselves.

"Had That COMMITTEE FIXED."

committee.

DENIED BY MR. CURTIS.

At this inacture Mr. Curtis arose and denied that Mr. Gleun had ever offered to lend him-the money. Mr. Meredith called the attention of Mr. Curtis to the statement of Mr. Waddey that his man had gone to him (Curtis) to see if necessary pecuniary arrangements had been made for the committee's trip. Mr. Curtis remarked that he had not as yet had an opportunity to correct this.

Continuing his evidence Mr. Epps said that he thought inasmuch as this man had made the same proposition to the other members of the committee there was no impropriety in his taking it. The sum (S199) had been loaned to himself in Mr. Mountcastle's presence and the same amount to Mr. Mountcastle in his own presence. The witness told Mr. Belvin of this transaction while in Philadelphia, and the latter proposed to let him have the money to repay the Waddey loan. He did not, however, get the cash from Mr. Belvin until two or three days after the committee returned from the North. Mr. Belvin gave him the $190 in Jake's place, when no one but a negro man was in there. But little more transpired in regard to the money until the night the contract was let, when the witness and Mr. Belvin met at Murphy's. Mr. Belvin told Mr. Epps then that the $100 loaned to him was 500ze's money. The witness said he asked him "why in h—I be did not tell him so," and told him that he would raise the amount to pay it back in a few days.

OAVE MR. RELVIN A NOTE.

A short time later he wrote Mr. Belyin a "RAD THAT COMMITTEE FIEED."

Mr. Glenn was asked by Mr. Gnigon if he had ever stated to any friend of his own that "he had that committee fixed."
He said that he did not; that he had never made any remark in connection with the metalinc book-files, except that if the quality of the material and the workmanship would count for anything he was positive that this concern would get the contract. The witness then made certain explanations of amounts of expense as shown by Mr. Waddey's statement. He said that one or two items inquired of by the City Attorney were due to the fact that he had gotten his meals down-town while making the measurements and doing other work in the City Hall in connection with his bid for the metalite files.

Mr. BOOZE WILL COME.

OAVE ME. RELVIN A NOTE.

A short time later he wrote Mr. Belyin a letter saying that he was sorry that he did not have the money to repay him, but he would give him his note endorsed by William E. Purcell. To this Mr. Belvin replied that he had lent Mr. Epps the money without any paper and would certainly be satisfied with his individual note. Here the witness showed a communication from Mr. Belvin acknowledging the receipt of his note, and also a letter from Mr. Booze asking Mr. Epps to see him at Murphy's Hotel on important business, which Mr. Epps had not done.

The witness told of a conversation he once had with Mr. Booze in which the latter practically promised him a $7- or $8.

aday job in a New Jersey factory, and added that since the contract had been awarded he had heard nothing about the place.

CONCLUDES HIS STATEMENT

"I shall cheerfully appear before the committee upon certain conditions, that other witnesses which I shall name in due time shall be subposized before my coming to Richmond, and that the committee will sit in continuous session until all the testimony is gone through with that I may propose to present to the committee.

"Hoping that you will lay this communication before the chairman of the committee and have the committee take such action as they may deem fit in the premises and inform me of same." In concluding his statement Mr. Epps said: "When Mr. Belvin loaned me that money I thought he was as pure as my wife and that he did so to releve me of embarrassment. I want to say furthermore, gentlemen, that in casting my vote for these contracts I cast them just as if I were going to pay for the work myself. I voted as consistently as I knew how. There is no man who will tell you he knew how I was going to vote or that I asked him how he would vote. Then I want to know, genilemen, admitting what Mr. Starke has said as true, for the sake of argument, would my vote have given him the contract? Did I cast the deciding vote? Either man could have done without me. I believe every man cast his vote as I did—as he thought best.

"I acknowledge I have acted indiscreetly. I thought Mr. Belvin's loan was an honest one. Gentlemen, I thank you for listening to my statement, and while I know that I acted undiscreetly I have no apology to make for the manner in which I voted."

"PAT THE $100 TO-DAY."

At this juncture Mr. Epps handed the allocal energy man as the form. action as they may deem fit in the premises and inform me of same."

MR. S. E. Bates, the Assistant Engineer, who accompanied the committee to New York, was asked whether he had heard any expressions as to which of the files was the best. He said he had not, except at the meetings. Mr. Epps expressed his opinion during a discussion. Mr. Bates's bill of expenses on the trip was only $60. He said this included hotel bills, car fares, etc., and that he stopped at the same place with the committee and travelled about the city in street-cars, as did the rest of the gentlemen. He charged all his legitimate expenses to the city.

Mr. Frank P. Bates, of the City Engineer's office, was recalled. He was questioned by Mr. Epps say about the files. The Clerk stated that on the evening of the last meeting of the sub-committee the Jefferson Ward Councilman asked him what he thought of the goods. Mr. Bates expressed a slight preference for some features of the Specialty company's samples, but heard Mr. Epps say nothing as to his views.

Dis Anderson of the Stand.

At this juncture Mr. Epps handed the alleged anonymous letter to Mr. Meredith, putting it in evidence. It bore date of Thursday and read as follows:

"Go to Ctitzens Bank, pay note $100 today before 3 o'clock. If you have not the money borrow it. Very important.

"A FSIEND."

Some comparisons of handwriting were reads and Mr. Epps's cross-examination it. I do not want to do any injustice to my fellow man. I will, however, answer it if you say it is a proper question.

Mr. Meredith: It is a proper question.

Mr. Epps: The name given to me was that of Mr. Preston Belvin.

The witness, while under severe cross-examination by Mr. Meredith, said that when he borrowed the money from Mr. Belvin he did not know that Mr. Belvin was connected with the metallic company.

Mr. STARKE'S ASSERTION.

Belvin he did not know that ar. Belvin was connected with the metallic company.

Mr. Epps then said that he had no recollection of ever uttering such remarks as Mr. Starke had stated he had in regard to the material and workmanship in the goods of the Specialty company and the fenton company. He added that it he had done so it was when "he had more whiskey than head."

Mr. Meredith called the attention of Mr. Epps to the suppers at Murphy's, which had been spoken of in the course of the investigation, and asked if he did not consider them somewhat in the nature of a bribe. He said that he did not, as he knew that they would not affect him. He censidered that Mr. Belvin was such a friend to him as would warrant him in borrowing the $100.

Mr. Meredith obtained from the witness the admission that he did not pay the money borrowed from Mr. Belvin, but with that which he received from the city by the addition of $4.

CHARGED ALL TO THE CITY.

Mr. Grigore saked Mr. Epps what part you to do so?

Mr. Epps: I did. sir. I considered that as I was giving a week of my time in at-tending to the city's business the city should defray my expenses. She paid for all my eating, drinking, sleeping, and riding. riding.
Continuing his statement, Mr. Epps said
Mr. Belvin never told him at any time that if he received the contract he (Epps) need not pay that money back.

what MR. RELVIN SAID.

Mr. Meredith: Did Mr. Belvin ever say to you that if Sterke got the contract you need not repay the $100?

Mr. Epps: He did, sir: but he was drinking, and I did not consider that he meant what he was saving.

Mr. Epps: He did, sir: but he was drinking, and I did not consider that he meant what he was saving.

The witness denied that this subject was ever alluded to by either himself or Mr. Belvin afterward. Upon being questioned by Mr. Guigon Mr. Epps said that he considered Mr. Belvin "haif drunk and a little over." He then referred to the fact that he had already stated that he had on other conversation until the night after the contract was let, and when Mr. Belvin said that it was Booze's money that he had loaned to him he (Epps) replied: "Why in the —did you not tell me so? You have deceived me."

The witness was interrogated by the chairman asto whether he received a present while North as a member of the subcommittee. He replied that he did. A beaver, he thought, was given to him by Mr. Booze. He would not say whether any other member or members of the party which went on that trip received similar presents. Here Mr. Epps was again applianced. He did not regard the hat as a bribe, as at that time it was not even known whether metallic or wooden files would be used in the City Hall.

It was then a few minutes past 11 O'clock, and the committee adjourned until 8 o'clock Tuesday night.

Then it was decided that the committee would be sent at the city's expense. The committee was afterwards appointed and Mr. Curtis was made chairman."

Witness then referred to a conversation which he had subsequently with Mr. Curtis as to how the expenses of the trip should be provided for. Mr. Curtis, he continued, said each member would have to pay his own way and be reimbursed by the city. The Otey-Battery Reunion.
The Otey Battery Association had its annual reunion at the nump-house yesterday. The affair was the all the reunions of the survivors of this battery—a most pleasant affair. Among the members Faltimore, and J. H. Fredericks, of Parker-burg, W. Va. There was an abundance of good cheer and the day was spent in games and in recalling scenes and incrdents of the war.

Of Course You Are Going Out of Town

It is a well-known tact that a great many people in Richmond leave the city every summer and spend the greater part of the summer away in pursuit of comfort. So every year comes the question "Where shall we go this summer?" If it were possible to find a place with natural and artificial attractions so blended as to make it a perfect garden-spot, so convenient to the city that the members of the family engaged in business will lose no time therefrom, but be able to enjoy all the comforts of the summer home at night with their family—if such could be found it would be a place that fills a long-felt want.
